

NANB* Guidelines

*As a fellowship in New Brunswick, Canada's only officially bilingual province, we wish to acknowledge the bilingual character of the province within which we function and, additionally to acknowledge that addiction does not confine itself to one linguistic community. As such, the acronym "NANB" is meant to suggest either "Narcotiques Anonymes Nouveau-Brunswick" or "Narcotics Anonymous New Brunswick". Anglophone or francophone, we share a common disease and a common program. At the same time, for practical reasons, for the time being, NANB shall conduct business exclusively in English because of the predominantly English composition of the fellowship at the present time.

SERVICE AREA:

The designated service area of this ASC shall be determined by, but not limited to, the geographical location of the ASC Groups that are seated with the Area Service Committee.

Requests for services from any other groups and/or committees outside of this service Area shall be considered by the ASC as a whole.

PURPOSE:

The purpose of this ASC shall be to serve its member groups by encouraging unity, cooperation, and communication among them. Also, ASC meetings will provide an opportunity for those groups to express their conscience through the NA service structure.

FUNCTIONS:

The general function of the ASC, beyond its fundamental purpose of serving the groups, is to conduct business and co-ordinate activities common to the member groups and sub-committees in accordance with the Twelve Traditions of NA. The ASC will attempt to provide services within the community that inform the public about the presence of NA.

2. A vote on a proposal shall be called if, after the chairperson repeats what they believe to be the consensus reached, there is significant dissent on the matter. As a rule of thumb 85% or greater in agreeance would demonstrate consensus

Consensus

Voting is a means by which we choose one alternative from several. Consensus, on the other hand, is a process of synthesizing many diverse elements together.

Voting is a win or lose model, in which people are more often concerned with the numbers it takes to "win" than with the issue itself. Voting does not take into account individual feelings or needs. In essence, it is a quantitative, rather than qualitative, method of decision-making.

With consensus people can and should work through differences and reach a mutually satisfactory position. It is possible for one person's insights or strongly held beliefs to sway the whole group. No ideas are lost, each member's input is valued as part of the solution.

A group committed to consensus may utilize other forms of decision making (individual, compromise, majority rules) when appropriate; however, a group that has adopted a consensus model will use that process for any item that brings up a lot of emotions, is something that concerns people's ethics, politics, morals or other areas where there is much investment.

What does consensus mean?

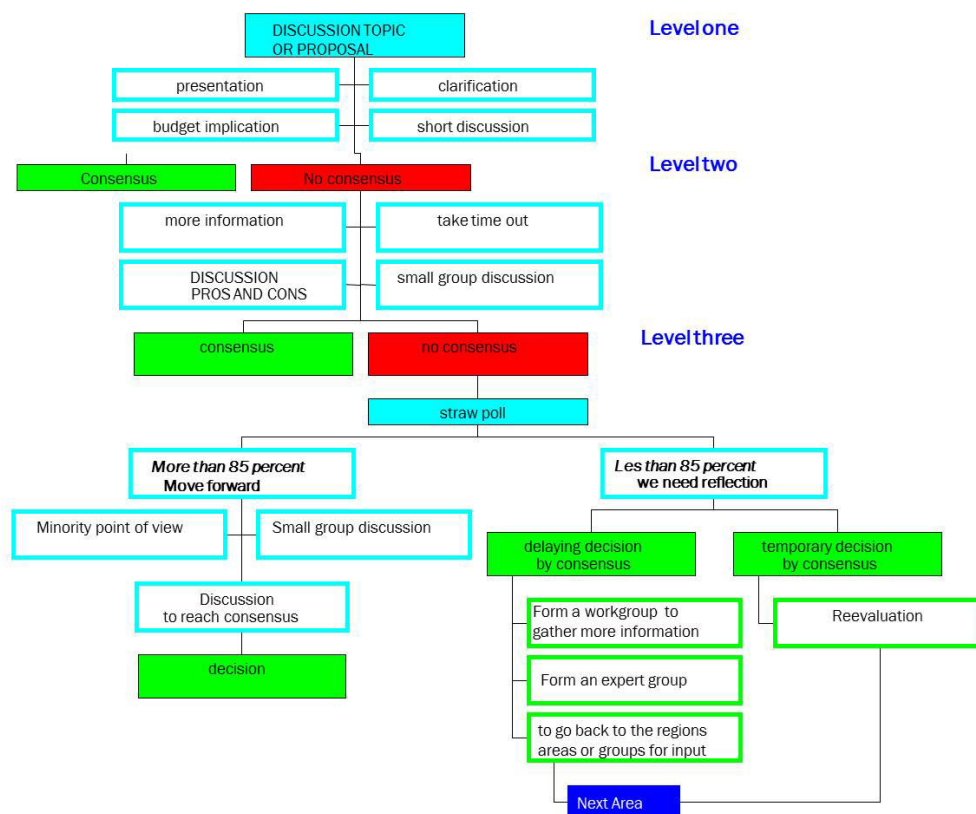

Consensus does not mean that everyone thinks that the decision made is necessarily the best one possible, or even that they are sure it will work. What it does mean is that in coming to that decision, no one felt that her/his position on the matter was misunderstood or that it wasn't given a proper hearing. Hopefully, everyone will think it is the best decision; this often happens because, when it works, collective intelligence does come up with better solutions than could individuals.

Consensus takes more time and member skill but uses lots of resources before a decision is made, creates commitment to the decision and often facilitates creative decisions. It gives everyone some experience with new processes of interaction and conflict resolution, which is basic but important skill-building.

For consensus to be a positive experience, it is best if the group has

- 1) common values
- 2) some skill in group process and conflict resolution, or a commitment to let these be facilitated
- 3) commitment and responsibility to the group by its members
- 4) sufficient time for everyone to participate in the process.
